FOOTBALL OF THE BEST

Five Slashing Games Arouse Interest This Afternoon.

YALE READY FOR BROWN

Dartmouth Men Confident That Tigers Will Feel Sting of Defeat.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, and Cornell will provide a profusion of football for the sportsman on the gridiron today. Not in many years have so many important games been scheduled for one afternoon. Under the new rules the various eleven are so much better balanced that interest is more widespread and better sustained. Yale will do battle with Brown at New Haven in an effort to wipe out the stain of the 21 to 0 defeat last season. Harvard will take the field against the Carlisle Indians at Cambridge, but will use a substitute team, with no disrespect for the conquerors of Pennsylvania. Princeton will face Dartmouth at Princeton, knowing full well that it is a struggle on its hands that is likely to be quite as bitter and hard fought as the one against Harvard last Saturday. Pennsylvania must line up against Lafayette at Philadelphia, a worthy foe for any team, in an effort to make up in part for three straight defeats at the hands of Brown, Pennsylvania State and Carlisle. Cornell will clash with Michigan at Ithaca, confident that it can do better than Syracuse, which a week ago played the Wolverines to a tie.

Yale-Brown, Princeton-Dartmouth, and Cornell-Syracuse are considered the most important, for the reason that all four teams have visions of the so-called championship, and for the reason that it will be a final test for Yale and Princeton, with their own game only a week away. Lovers of the sport have been in a quandary as to which game to select, but in all probability the exodus from New York this morning will be about equally divided between New Haven and Princeton.

So far as can be judged, Yale is better prepared for Brown than it was the case last season, when the men from Providence won by a total of twenty-one points, with a brilliant show of football. The regulars who are recovering from minor injuries are back in the line-up, and, barring accidents, the team will take the field as it will against Princeton, with possibly one or two exceptions. Dunn will get his trial in the backfield, and Yale men will watch his work with unusual interest, as a heavy plugging back is needed. Dunn is a young bull in strength and has been using his head for hitting, but lacks experience. The coaches have been using him at end most of the season and have had little time to develop him as a good back.

The line from end to end seems reasonably settled, and the critics will watch it closely this afternoon to find out if possible if it measures up to those of Harvard and Princeton, which made such a good impression, particularly defensively, last Saturday.

Brown's easy defeat by Harvard two weeks ago, when the Crimson won by a score of 20 to 6, is no indication that Yale will have things their own way. Judging from reports the eleven has improved markedly in the last ten days and is remarkably confident. A disquieting rumor comes from Providence, however, that Ashbaugh, one of the best ends of the season, is not in good condition and may be unable to last out the game. His absence would be a distinct handicap and one which it would be hard for Brown to overcome.

The Princeton Tigers have been working hard this week to build up a stronger attack than was shown in the Harvard game, as they have even been told that the Dartmouth eleven, which is unbeaten this year, which has been building slowly but surely the less sure for this game and the one with Harvard next week. The undergraduates from Hanover have made the long journey to Princeton fully three hundred strong, and those who were seen in this city last night did not attempt to hide their confidence over the outcome.

In looking forward to the game it seems almost impossible to make a prediction, as there is so little on which to base an opinion as to the respective chances of the two eleven. Princeton's defense that is not even the powerful Harvard backs could not meet, and consequently should be able to hold Dartmouth at bay. The Tigers, on the other hand, have no attack that the eleven from Hanover need fear unless De Witt's drop kicking should turn out to be as effective in the game this afternoon as it has been in practice the last few days.

The Dartmouth players arrived in this city yesterday, and will go out to Princeton this morning. The squad was made up of twenty-eight players, and they looked and acted in perfect physical condition.

Carlisle Indians can boast of one of the best and strongest eleven ever developed by Glenn Warner, and this means that Harvard, without the services of Potter at quarterback, and a lot of substitutes, may find much difficulty in scoring. In fact, a victory for the Indians would be altogether surprising, even without Captain Durd at end, as they have proved themselves adept in the use of open plays, which are so dangerous as a game, and they may be unable to be ready for a battle, but if he can take his place in the backfield with Arcene and Fewell, the Indians should not suffer in comparison with the best backs that Harvard can put in the field, not excepting Wendell, Campbell and Huntington.

Michigan will be handicapped against Cornell by the injury to one of the best quarterbacks in the West, and, judging by the fact that Syracuse played the Wolverines to a tie, it is reasonable to expect that the eleven from Ithaca will pull out a victory.

Steady improvement has marked the work of the Cornell team this week. Fritz, who has been playing a brilliant game at end, while Captain Munk is in fair condition, Fritz, at right end, continues to be a surprise. In stature he is the least likely man for the position, but in action he seems to have qualities not to be found in any one else on the squad. He is both fast and accurate. In addition, he has perfect control of his head, and, on the other hand, his head has perfect control of his body. The Quakers have been subject to a general mix-up for the last two weeks, but Butler is now settled at quarterback, with O'Connor, R. B. White and Underhill as other backs.

The Pennsylvania and Lafayette teams appear to be about evenly matched if comparison is made for anything. The Indians defeated Lafayette on October 28 by a score of 19 to 0, and the following week, by a score of 19 to 0. The two eleven have met on the gridiron since 1852, and in that time Lafayette has done well by winning six games and playing three to a tie.

Good judges do not hesitate to express the opinion that Pennsylvania showed marked improvement against the Indians in the defeat, and the practice this week indicates that the team has found itself, and from now on will show to much better advantage. The team from Easton is fast, strong and well balanced, so that the Quakers may be forced to swallow another bitter pill.
